IN 2022,

time has come to uncover the true nature of Gulf stream éditeur, a brilliant publishing house for the common man, and a secret society, which has been operating for thousands of years, for the initiated.

Yes, dear reader, we are in fact the GARDIANS of a passage between reality and imagination.

Several generations ago, our ANCESTORS met beings who were not yet called authors back then..

In those ancient times, these entities, both EVIL and compassionate, wanted to shape our universe into what was growing in their imagination: wondrous lands inhabited by enchanting souls, and unfathomable depths haunted by FRIGHTENING MONSTERS. Seduced by these possibilities, but aware of the risks, our ancestors pronounced long forgotten incantations to create an occult process: WRITING.

This allowed them to contain the CREATIVE forces around them, while letting it be expressed. However, they warned their children and their children's children: 'Do not accumulate too much magic and sorcery, or carnage and destruction will come from these words. We, the descendants of this glorious lineage, have made an irredeemable mistake: the Magic and Sorcery that we have allowed our authors to use today are overflowing.

The balance is about to CRUMBLE.
Judge for yourself by browsing this catalogue...
at your own risk.

This symbol indicates the 2022 publications for which the main themes are magic and the dark arts.

This symbol indicates when the booksellers have loved and recommend the book both for its literary qualities and the themes it addresses: it's a MUST HAVE!

Selection Magic and Witchcraft

Young Fiction - From 7

Pages 12 and 14

Books to introduce young readers aged 7/8 to fantasy novels where magic and marvelous worlds open up to them gently, with occasional chills!

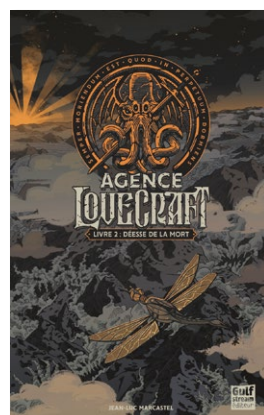

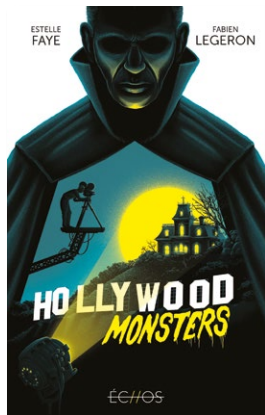

Fiction - From 9

Pages 18 and 21

An explosion of dragons, dryads, elemental magic and spells awaits readers aged 9 to 12 to satisfy their desire for epic quests.

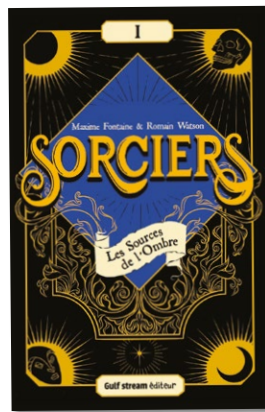

Fiction - From 13

Pages 24 and 28-29

Fantasy and wonder fade away to make room for fear and anxiety. Teen novels reveal a darker, more ambivalent magic, where terrible creatures are birthed. Enough to bring intense readings to bookworms.

Fiction - From 15

Pages 34 and 38

Young Adult novels deeply rooted in imagination and mixing it with the inspiring and dynamic codes of children's literature.

Trölls

Aut. : Ellie S. Green • ILL. : Lisa Guisquier

Have you ever heard of King Rotinmir's trölls? These malevolent creatures use the fading lights of dusk to sneak into houses. Every broken plate, every overturned table and every dismantled toy is a source of great satisfaction for them. So when the winter solstice arrives, the impatient trölls prepare themselves for the longest night of the year, ready to wreak havoc as soon as they have slipped into the chimneys. But that night, one tröll will change the history of his species forever: instead of destroying it, he will repair a toy...

GENRE Fairytale

Although its protagonists come from Nordic mythology, this tale was born in the heart of winter between the white hills and the foggy landscapes of Savoie (France). This meteorological harshness is conducive to (and above all an excuse for) Christmas movie marathons, so I re-watch all my childhood favorites every year. At the end of the hundredth viewing, gorged with images of pink, smooth and smiling elves, fundamental questions emerged like marshmallows in my hot chocolate mug: where do Santa's elves come from? What if they weren't always so cute, pink and smooth?

Ellie S. Green

Where is the Red-Nosed Reindeer?

Aut. : Sophie Adriansen • ILL. : Marta Orzel

Panic on board! The presents are wrapped, the deers all set to distribute them butne of them is missing... Where is Rudolph, the red-nosed deer whose task it is toee that the sleigh reaches its destination? Under the frozen lake ? Behind the log stach? In the kitchen ?

A quest crammed with surprises in an enchanted setting.

And Behind us, the Silence

Aut. : Nancy Guilbert • Ill. : Leselo Quentes

No more being bullied at school and no more worries at home! Ellie can feel it: with her cousin Lola by her side as she enters high school, she will be invincible. Bright Lola, so sparkling with life... manipulative, too.

In the heart of the neighboring mountain, Jeff's gaze is fixed on Stefan, his beloved older brother... and a predator. Forget blood ties, Jeff has only one goal: to avenge Lou.

High school, freedom... everything that used to be a daily routine is now just a memory for Yüna in this room where her abuser, the one she used to call 'daddy', is holding her prisoner.

On the brink of a precipice, will these silenced teenagers find a way to make themselves heard?

Three voices in the face of family violence, three drops of water in an ocean of screams.

The voices of Yüna, Jeff and Ellie are inspired by those of teenagers suffocating from domestic violence. The plot is set in the mountains, a space of freedom and danger, discovery and solitude. The gold of the Kintsugi art, covering the fractures of broken bowls, is a parallel to these lives in recovery. I wrote with the hope that it would break the silence and never let it kill again.

It was on the banks of the Seine that we first talked about Hollywood Monsters. Very quickly we had the idea of a duo. Malachi would be more or less Fabien's character. Doris would be more or less Estelle's character. We wrote a scene-by-scene together, as for a screenplay, before sharing the writing, while always discussing and reviewing each other's work...

THE TWILIGHT OF THE URMES

Release Date May 2022

The Twilight of the Urmes - Book 1 : The Last Fragment

Aut.: Arnaud Druelle • Ill.: Passye

1866, Wales. Jane, an orphaned teenage girl, is searching for her brother who was kidnapped as an infant. The dark predictions of an old gypsy woman, Azko's grandmother, set her on the trail of the Last Fragment.

But what is it? And why do the Shadowmists and Soulreapers, these creatures of nightmares, seem to be looking for him too?

I imagined The Twilight of the Urmes just as I was finishing writing The Pan Child. Through the journey of a group of teenagers in a land of legends, Wales, I wanted to introduce readers to the fabulous myths and little-known tales of the gypsy people, who have roamed the world since the dawn of time.

The Mechanical Angels - Vol. 1

Aut.: Carina Rozenfeld

Paris, 13th century. A veil running over several kilometers appears, dividing the city in two. Is it heaven or hell that awaits those who dare to cross it? No one knows, because they never return. Centuries later, this strange phenomenon seems to have been erased from the world's memory. However, the veil is still here and, in the greatest secrecy, some people fight to make sure that this now invisible frontier remains safe. They are the mechanical angels.

The Mechanical Angels* is one of those novels for which I don't remember how it started. But I've wanted to get back to these kinds of stories for a long time: the destiny of teenagers who live in our current world and who find themselves turned upside down by a revelation, a quest, a power, a world to save. It is therefore a real pleasure to return to this genre, thirteen years after *The Quest for the World Books!

“Surreal, atrocious, apocalyptic... The launch party for the Selenium beauty cream continues to cause a stir. Actress Neomi Swan, the brand’s muse, documented the absolute horror on Instagram. The images show the guests giving in to bloodthirsty impulses, carrying out attacks of unprecedented violence. We can see blood and pieces of human flesh littering the floor. A scene worthy of a zombie movie! The government has declared a lockdown over the area, even urging people to use violence if confrontation with an infected person is unavoidable. Prélude

A collection of short novels reinterpreting the great operas to (re)discover the classics through the codes of teenage literature.

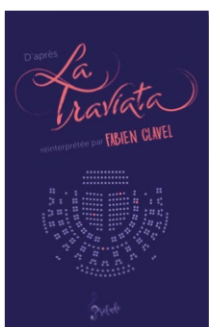

CONCEPT PRESENTATION

- Short texts to provide intense and gripping readings, making the opera experience accessible and enjoyable.
- Taking a well-known opera and retelling it using the codes of teenage literature, based on a main literary genre (fantasy, investigation, romance...).
- One author = One vision of opera. The form, the tone and the era will vary according to the text in order to let the authors' creativity flow.
- Texts completed by links redirecting to the audios of the original operas, the history of its composition, the biography of the composer and pedagogical files to enrich the reflection around the novels.

So, what should I write this time? I'd like to write a story about a lie, that would be a nice start... But who will lie to the heroine? A friend, her boyfriend, her employer? Oh, I know! They'll all be involved in sneakingly exploiting her prophetic powers, something to do with the stars. I've been wanting to invent a sky map for a long time, this will be my chance. And I can add some magic and dragons, it'll be fun to make all these elements interact together!

The controversial outcome of the battle of Qadesh gave me the idea for this novel: we remember history by the texts that reach us. But what if they were false? Propaganda by the victors to assimilate the defeated? My heroines will question the collective memory in search of the truth, because the answer to surviving the emerging supernatural war, lies in forgotten myths.

On a slope of Mount Grey, on the edge of the Darkwoods is Malombre, a windswept village surrounded by the lament of howling wolves. There Red survives as a castaway because of a physical defect. Father François is one of the few who sympathize with her. For, according to rumours, you must in no way touch Red for fear of ending up branded with the mark of Evil like her. When she bleeds for the first time, it’s a relief for the villagers to see her go according to the cursed pact which weighs on them. Following in the steps of other young girls before her, the girl they have nicknamed the Crimson One has to enter the woods in order to meet the ominous Grand-Mother. Is it salvation or a fate worse than death that awaits Red? No-one cares and no-one knows because none of the banished has ever come back.

The Perfume for the Empress

Aut. : Leslie Tanguy

A devastating tide submerged the continents, leaving only a few islands for the survivors to settle on. The largest of these is the Archipelago, where the imperial government maintains strict rules. One day, a perfume contest is organized to relieve the tormented mind of the empress. Nimué, the energetic botanist, Lugen, the moody perfumer, and Tydorel, the flamboyant poster artist, are desperate to find the rare flower that will make them win. Faisons connaissance...

L'horizon 2020 s'annonce riche de découvertes prometteuses. D'autres plumes littéraires et artistiques nous rejoindront pour des aventures inédites aux côtés de ceux que nous défendons déjà avec enthousiasme, et depuis de nombreuses années pour certains. Découvrez nos auteurs, primo-romanciers, talents émergents, à la bibliographie déjà bien installée, ou qui s'essaient à de nouveaux genres. Leurs mots sont illustrés avec humour, fantaisie, délicatesse et dynamisme par des illustrateurs aux palettes variées et complémentaires.

www.longue-vue.art

Since 1984, the Nantes-based company Gulf Stream éditeur has offered a range of postcards specialized in naturalist representations (fauna & flora) and lighthouses around France. Through the new brand Longue-Vue (telescope), this side of our work is reborn to offer unique products.

Our talented artists create their illustrations in the traditional way, which Longue-Vue proposes in different formats (postcards, posters, mugs, card games, etc.).

Always encouraging creativity, Longue-Vue advocates an ecological and responsible approach to printing: choosing French printers, vegetable-based ink, recycled paper or paper from sustainably managed forests, packaging made from recycled and recyclable cardboard... Longue-Vue is an engaged picture explorer.
